

BOSTON NEWSPAPER MAN FOUND DEAD IN CAPITAL

John W. Carberry Connected With Globe for More Than Twenty Years.

John W. Carberry, a reporter on the Boston Daily Globe for more than twenty years, was found dead in his room at the Shoreham yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Corner Nevitt viewed the body and suggested that death was undoubtedly due to natural causes, although he said he would delay giving a certificate until the arrival of relatives. About five weeks ago Mr. Carberry came from Boston to assist in gathering the news of the Mexican situation for his paper, and later he covered the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad investigation. Friday night he was at the National Capital Press Club with Robert L. Norton, correspondent for the Boston Post, and the men separated about midnight.

Dead Body Is Found.

Carberry went to his room shortly after leaving Norton. It is stated, and yesterday afternoon, when it was reported that his room door had been locked all day and that hotel employees had been unable to enter the room, an investigation was made by the house detective, and the dead body found.

Clifford Carberry, a brother of the deceased, is managing editor of the Boston Post. He was called over the long-distance telephone and informed of the sudden death. He stated that he would leave Boston in time to reach here about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The deceased, it is thought, was about fifty years old. During his long career on the Boston paper, it is said, he traveled to all parts of the United States and reported many important trials. Carberry reported all the trials of Harry Thaw, including the hearings in Canada and New Hampshire.

One of the early trials he reported was the Lizzie Burden trunk murder in Boston, and he later reported the Hattie LeBlond and Tucker murder cases in that city. He covered the Avila Linnell murder case in Boston, including the electrocution of the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richardson, her murderer.

Other Assignments.

Another case of interest reported by Carberry involved the trial of McNamara and others in the conspiracy which culminated in the destruction of the Los Angeles, Cal., Times building and the killing of a number of persons employed in the building. He also reported the case of the killing of former Gov. Steuneger at Boise City, Idaho, growing out of trouble with the Indians.

Carberry's body was taken to an undertaking establishment last night, and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Carberry, was notified of his death. The family home is in Brookline, a suburb of Boston.

JOLLY TIME IS PLANNED

FOR INDEPENDENCE DAY

Committee Provides for Every Form of Amusement—Appeal Made for Funds.

According to the plans of the citizens' Independence day celebration committee, Washington will be one of the jolliest and most interesting places in the United States on the Fourth of July.

Every detail of the big day's program has been mapped out and it provides for every form of amusement for the community in general. District Commissioner Oliver P. Newman, chairman of the Independence day committee, has been anxious that the comfort and pleasure of all the citizens be taken into consideration in the arrangements for the national holiday.

Five Thousand Dollars Needed.

Funds to the extent of $5,000 are needed at once to carry on the work of the committee, which has established its headquarters in room 503, municipal building. Commissioner Newman requests that funds intended for the Fourth of July treasury be addressed to Edmund S. Wolfe, treasurer, at the committee headquarters. While the Fourth of July is still about a month and a half away, it is essential that the committee know in about ten days the extent of its finances so that the contract for fireworks may be gauged accordingly.

E. C. Graham, chairman of the fireworks committee, has mapped out a wonderfully interesting program for an aerial display, but of course the committee is powerless to go ahead without adequate funds in hand.

WILL HONOR MEMORY

OF VERA CRUZ VICTIMS

Army and Navy Union to Hold Service Tonight in Metropolitan M. E. Church.

The memory of the sailors and marines who fell at Vera Cruz when the American forces took possession of that port will be honored at exercises to be held this evening in the Metropolitan M. E. Church, C street and John Marshall place.

The services will be under the auspices of the Department of the District of Columbia Army and Navy Union, and will be in immediate charge of Department Commander John McElroy. Tribute will be paid to the memory of the soldier and sailor dead of all wars, and particularly to deceased members of the Army and Navy Union.

A number of the sailors and marines killed at Vera Cruz were active members of the organization. In general orders just issued Col. McElroy announces that the exercises will begin at 8 o'clock and that the pastor of Metropolitan Church, Rev. Dr. James Shea Montgomery, will preach a memorial sermon. Senator Burah of Idaho is expected to make an address. Department Commander McElroy will deliver the memorial address.

Delegations of uniformed troops and artillerymen from Fort Myer and sailors and marines from the marine barracks and navy yard will participate in the military feature of the program, the presentation of a salute to the colors. Commander Linn of President's Own Garrison will be in charge of the uniformed members of the Army and Navy Union, who will act as ushers. The parade will form at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue at 7:30 p.m.

Pujah Guilty in Second Degree.

Special Dispatch to The Star. HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 23.—Demetri Pujah, charged with the murder of Francis Luchinsky, who was fatally stabbed at Highfield, Md., last February, was this afternoon found guilty of second degree murder, which carries with it a penalty of five to eighteen years in the penitentiary. The trouble that ended in the death of Luchinsky started over a game of cards.

Mrs. Elizabeth Weaver, aged fifty-six years, wife of Joseph Weaver, proprietor of the Arlington Hotel, died suddenly yesterday at Cumberland, Md.

MARINE OFFICER TELLS OF FIRST DAY'S STRIFE

Had to Use Pickaxes to Force Doors in Search for Snipers, Writes Lieut. Drum.

LIEUT. ANDREW B. DRUM, U. S. M. C.

The first marines who landed at Vera Cruz had to use pickaxes in opening up houses to dislodge snipers, according to a statement in a letter recently received by his family from Lieut. Andrew Drum, U. S. M. C. Lieut. Drum is a Washington boy, was educated at the public schools in this city, and is in charge of the marines on the battleship South Carolina. He was among the first representatives of the flag to land at Vera Cruz, and, according to him, for the first few days things were pretty hot.

Lieut. Drum was present at the raising of the American flag at Vera Cruz, April 27. His grandfather, Capt. Simon Drum, was present at the former raising of the standard sixty-eight years ago. Capt. Simon Drum was a member of the 4th Artillery; was graduated from West Point in the class of 1829. Gen. Leach, class, landed with Scott's army and participated in the march from Vera Cruz to Mexico City, with its attendant battles with the Mexicans.

At West Point, mounted as a relic, is a field gun with the following inscription:—Lost by— at Buena Vista, without dishonor, and retaken by Capt. Simon Drum with honor.

Among the prizes possessed of his daughter-in-law, mother of Lieut. Drum, are the dress coat worn by Capt. Drum during his service, another uniform coat, which he is supposed to have worn when he was killed, and his money belt, found on his body. The free and easy clothes worn by soldiers today are in strong contrast to the heavily padded, tight-fitting, long-tailed affair, surmounted by a stiff three-inch collar, and very precious. Burning bombs, embroidered in gold, ornament each of the spiked tails, and each shoulder bears a heavy brass epaulet.

Lieut. Drum's father, son of the veteran of the former Mexican war, fought in the civil war, was later in the quartermaster's department of the United States Regular Army, and was for fourteen years superintendent of Arlington cemetery.

Lieut. Drum was born in Winchester, Va., and at the age of nine took up his residence in Washington. Shortly after the completion of his high school course, at the age of twenty-one, he was commissioned a lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Way Sagless Springs

Read the construction and you'll see why it is such a wonderfully satisfactory spring. The cables swing from ball-and-socket joints. Each cable consists of six strands, wound around a steel pin—when the pin is released, the cable is run through a friction, takes out all the slack—reducing the length 4 inches in every 6 feet. Each cable is capable of sustaining 150 pounds weight—and you lay on about twenty of these cables. Impossible to sag.

Our Special Price . . . $7.75

Foster Ideal Springs

Here's a Spring that has all the comfort and convenience of a box spring without its unsanitary ticking. The makers guarantee them for a lifetime of service. They're made with hangers on the sides—so they can be used on either wood or metal bed. Three heavy angle irons under foundation—giving them great strength—and so constructed that sagging and side sway are impossible.
